Ketchum strongly encourages remote attendance at city meetings

KETCHUM, Idaho – As Blaine County moves through the current Omicron virus wave, the city of Ketchum is encouraging the public to participate virtually in upcoming public meetings.

Idaho's open meeting law requires that public meetings are open and accessible to people who choose to attend in person.

People entering the building are required to wear masks in accordance with Ketchum Health Order 21-02. Seating in the Community Meeting Room for City Council, Planning & Zoning Commission and Ketchum Urban Renewal Agency meetings is appropriately spaced for six-foot physical distancing.

Remote meeting information can be found on the agenda for all public meetings and can be accessed at www.ketchumidaho.org/meetings.

About the City of Ketchum

The City of Ketchum is located in the Wood River Valley in south central Idaho. Founded in 1880 during the mining boom, Ketchum is now regarded as one of the most popular destinations for winter and summer visitors due to its world-class skiing, mountain biking, fishing, hiking, restaurants, art galleries and shopping. In 2018, Ketchum was awarded designation by the International Dark-Sky Association as a Dark Sky Community and is included in the Nation's first International Dark Sky Reserve, one of only 13 in the world. The City of Ketchum hosts the famous annual Wagon Days Parade, held on Labor Day weekend, and numerous other year-round attractions. Ketchum is home to more than 10,000 full- and part-time residents.
