Question/Comment

As I was doing your great survey on community housing, I came across this while researching accessory dwellings. maybe some funds available here?

If you're building a tiny home on wheels rather than a permanent foundation, consider participating in what the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development calls "temporary urbanism" by planting your tiny house on urban property that's otherwise not useful .May 12, 2016

Just another idea for you :-) Janet Crews
